would consider it better than the Klondike and Standard Oil combined: But let that same man sit down in front of a faro game with $100 in his pocket. Will he be content to win $10 and then who can turn the trick every time, all there are mighty small Will he be content to win $10 and then cash in? Not once in ten thousand times. He considers himself a piker if the doesn't make 206 or 300 per cent and make it in a couple of hours' play. Even if he doubles his money the average man isn't satisfied. He's more like-

Reve hundred into the game, are perfectly satisfied to cash in when they are ten or fifty ahead. It can't be said that players of this sort are popular with the house. But they don't contribute much of their coin toward buying autos for the man backing the fame.

"The second quick aid to getting rich that human nature contributes to the bouse is the fendency which most men have to back bad luck heavily and let their good luck play itself out without putting them much to the better. A man wins two or three bets in a row. Then he thinks that it is up to him to lose the next. He cuts down his bets. It is quite likely that for some time he will continue to wint two out of three or three out of four bets. But this doesn't increase his winnings to any great extent, because of his reduction of the amount put up on each turn. "By and by, having played for a considerable time in what he considers a cautious manner, he will begin to between And just about this time his good luck is likely to be played out and the succeding current of bad luck will sweep away not only his winning, but the stake he originally started with. After he is 'broke,' or has lost all he can afford he will go away cursing his luck. He doesn't appreciate that he has been backing bad luck systematically, coppering his chances of winning and playing in a manner that would put a strain on a national bank. It is only one of the instances which prove the truth of the old saying. The machine will always beat the man, but it is an instance which one can see duplicates a dozen times an evening before any faro bank or roulette wheel.

"It is right here that the professional gambler has the better of the ordinary player. Watch an experienced player when he is trying to put a 'crimp' in the bank roll. He keeps putting down little bets; that is, small bets compared with the amount of his resources, never getting excited, simply waiting cooliy for the time when things seen to be coming his way. Then his style of play changes Intended to the conting his way. Then waiting coolly for the time when things seem to be coming his way. Then his style of play changes Instead of figuring that because he has won a few bets it is up to him to lose he keeps in-creasing the amounts he puts down. If he wins a bet he lets both his original het and the amount the house has just paid him stay up. In that way he is not only backing his good lu-i instead of his bad, but to a certain extent is betting the house's coin against himself.

"But it isn't human nature to do this. ability by long and probably expensive training. Of course, he still has both the percentage of the game and the bank's for legal capital against him. But he has cut out the 'machine against the man' end of the pame, which works so strongly against the ordinary

"Another thing the ordinary individual who goes against the bank fails to appreciate is how much better protected the bank is than the player against an extraordinary run of bad luck. The man bucking fare thinks he is relating a conservative game if he appreciate is how much better protected the bank is than the player against an extraordinary run of bad luck. The man bucking faro thinks he is playing a conservative game if he puts down 1 or 2 per cent of his whole stake each time; but the bank has from 200 to 1,000 times the limit back of it, and the limit bets are few and far between. The result is that the banker can stand a run of bad luck without it worrying him much. He knows the tide is certain to turn long before he is in any real danger. A similar streak of luck breaks the player. And then the fact that perhaps his health and the limit bets are few and far between the same of the long library. "Young man," said the professor, measuring the entire mental calibre of the banker at the limit back of luck breaks the player. The result is that the without it worrying him much. He knows the tide is certain to turn long before he is in any real danger. A similar streak of luck breaks the player. And then the fact that perhaps his luck was just at the turning point doesn't help him any. His money is safely tucked away in a little drawer back of the box. It has gone to protect the house still further against a possible run of bad luck.

"But it isn't the limit of the percentage which protects the house against a layers think worse."

A simit back

back of the box. It has gone to protect the house still further against a possible run of bad luck.

"But it isn't the limit of the percentage which protects the house against the doubling-up system that many players think would be infallible if they could only play it through. The house is well protected against that system by what might be called luck itself. In roulette a man bets a white chip on the red, loses and doubles his bet. Perhaps he may lose four or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in a row, and each time he dour or five makes in the losing series amounts to more than five or six turns against him. It looks like an easy game. But watch it through a long series of plays. Each time the player wins he is only ahead his original small stake. A long run of bets in his favor doesn't help him much. But by and by he is certain to strike a big run against him, where he will be playing the red, and it will come black a dozen or twenty times. Each time he must double his stake, and even if he is allowed to bet the limit, which is soon reached at this game, such a run of bad luck would find that the house insisted on the limit. "Once in a great while comes the contingency that every backer of a gam-ingency that every backer of a gam-inge

if he had the nerve and capital to wait for such a run in his favor, would find that the house insisted on the limit, "Goed The class in comparative aerotingency that every backer of a gambling game fears—the man who understands how to back his luck and strikes a phenomenal run of it. Then comes a request to raise the limit or take it off altogether. Of course the bank at Lompalanka.

If WHENEVER some one comes to isn't under any obligations to do this the front with a 'system' for beating roulette, or making the quiet gentleman who deals out the cards turn over the box, you will hear a lot of the wise ones say, 'It's nonsense. There's no system that can beat the bank's percentage,'" remarked Joe Uliman reminiscently, 'Of course there is a good deal of truth in this. But the people who talk this way overlook the best ally the house has. This is human nature. It wins more for the bank than all the splits and zeros. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred it is the only ally the house needs. But once in a while, and it's once in a very long while, too, this ally proves treacherous. It's then, if the man with the bank roll isn't absolutely square, that the brace dealing is done.

"Poor human nature helps the bank most frequently when the player wants too much, and wants it right away. Supposing you go to a business man and offer him 10 per cent for the use of a sum of money for a few hours. Would he think the offer a good one? If he didn't think it was simply a getrich-quick scheme for robbing him, he would consider it better than the Klondike and Standard Oil combined: But let the kasme man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the player wants the didn't think it was simply a getrich-quick scheme for robbing him, he would consider it better than the Klondike and Standard Oil combined: But let the kasme man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the last same man sit down in front of the losing pile, as it naturally would, it comes out on the other side. "Even in places where such dealers are employed it is seldom a trick of this sort is turned, for the bank doesn't Even if he doubles his money the average man isn't satisfied. He's more likely to draw a long breath and say to himself: 'Here's where I dent the bank roll.' And a little while after that the proprietor of the house has another century all ready to deposit in the morning.

"Of course, there are exceptions to this rule. But the exceptions are professional gamblers, not 'producers,' as they call the men who have a legitimate business and in reality furnish the funds which buy shiny stones for the man back of the box. There are men who play day in and day out, and who, after they have put a hundred or age.

I will not promise to make a Hercules of a man who was never intended nature to be strong and sturdy. Even that man I can make better than he but the man who has been strong and has lost his strength I can make good as he ever was. I can give back to any man what he has lost by abuse of the laws of nature. A man who is nervous, whose brain and body are weak, who sleeps badly, awakes more tired than when he went to bed, who is easily discouraged, inclined to brood over imaginary troubles, who has lost ambition and energy to tackle hard problems, lacks the animal electricity which the Dr. McLaughlin Electric Belt supplies.

The whole force of vitality in your body is dependent upon your animal electricity. When you lose that in any manner my Belt will replace it, and will core you.

Letters like that tell a story which means a good deal to a sufferer. The are a beacon light to the man who has become discouraged from useless doctoring. I get such letters every day.

My Belt has a wonderful influence upon tired, weak nerves. It braces and invigorates them and stirs up a great force of energy in a man.

I make the best electrical body appliance in the world, having devoted twenty years to perfecting it. I know my trade. My cures after everything else has falled are my best arguments.

is safe and certain. I am consulted daily by people who had failed to obtain a cure elsewhere, not because their physician intentionally deceived them, but because he did not possess the proper method of treating their disease. My new system for the treatment of men, cures thousands every year, after all other means had failed. It works

Hand in Hand With Nature.

The great volume of my practice enables me to place my services within the reach of the poor as well as the rich at a moderate price. Satusfactory arrangements can be made as to terms, so don't let financial matters keep you away. Come and see what I can do for you.

I can demonstrate to the most skeptical that I am doing just what I claim to do. When I have explained my treatment to you in detail, and you have talked in the privacy of their own offices with reliable business men whom I have cured, I feel certain that any doubt you may have had regarding my abi!ity to cure you will have vanished.

I have made a special study of the treatent of CHRONIC and NERVOUS DIS-EASES of men for many years, and over ten thousand cured patients will gladly testify to my skill, honesty and success in the practice of my specialty. I first discover and remove the cause or origin of the disease, and once this has been accomplished, I will quickly restore you to what nature intended-a healthy happy man, with physical and mental pow-alone constitute my specialty. I treat nothing else. I began a special study of them soon after graduating from college, now over a quarter of a century 220, and during all the years since then they have been my unceasing study and persistent practice. Am I not better prepared, then, to combat and conquer such ailments than the general practitioner, who lacks the teachings of experience in specialty cases?

VARICOCELE.

Varicoccle impairs vitality and destroys the elements of manhood. Surgery seldom cures it, but always weakens the parts. I daily demonstrate that Varicoccle can be positively cured without cutting, burning, tying or any other form of operation. Instead of the organs being maimed or mutilated, they are preserved and strengthened, pain ceases entirely and almost instantly, swelling soon subsides, healthy circulation is rapidly reestablished, and every part of the organism affected by the disease is thoroughly restanted. restored.

STRICTURE.

Neglected or badly treated Stricture is progressive, soon involving in its destructive course the whole Genito-Urinary system. Cutting, stretching, tearing or dilating are harsh and savage raminders of old fogyism. The strictly modern, original methods employed by me in the treatment of stricture are entirely free from the horrors of surgery, and are absolutely safe and painless. All abnormal growth is dissolved, leaving the water channel entirely free from obstruction, every unnatural discharge is stopped, and all irritation along the walls of the uretha and in the region of the prostate gland, bladder and

SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON.

Prompt and heroic treatment is the only kind that should ever be used in combating the "king" of bad diseases. Only temporary relief can come from Hot Springs baths, specifics, mercury, potash or other mineral mixtures and poisons. During the past year I have originated and perfected a cure for Specific Blood Poison that is absolutely safe, rapid and permanent and leaves no injurious after effects. Every external symptom soon disappears, while the blood, the tissues, the nerve fibres, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, strengthened and restored to perfect health and purity.

NERVO-VITAL DEBILITY.

There is certainly no victim of Nervo-Vital Debility, or Male Weakness, who does not hope to be rejuvenated sometime. You should not lose your grip on life because inferior remedies have failed to benefit you. My special treatment for this trouble, varied and modified to suit each individual case, is an unfailing cure to which a vast army of restored men today owe their sturdy health and happy condition in life. Under it all disagreeable symptoms soon disappear, drains of vigor are stopped, premature-ness prevented, masculine power thoroughly restored, and manhood made complete. Free advice and consultation at office, or by letter in plain envelope, whether you desire treat-
